100 year Anniversary of the first
"Crime of the Century"

AMERICAN CRIMINALS

Screenplay for consideration
By Warr Brothers

Based on the book
LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS
By Nathan Leopold

"LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS is a riveting and jaw dropping crime story from 1924 that is one of the very first murder stories to capture the attention of the world. The unbelievable narrative is still relevant and exciting today. The story is a wild, reckless and treacherous thrill ride – explosive and unpredictable!

This is a brilliant move for Warr Brothers Productions to acquire the rights to this story. I can't wait to see the casting, screenplay and how they spin this yarn of crime, passion and pursuit for justice. With Aaron Warr directing, this story is bound to be a winner."

AMERICAN CRIMINALS

Based on the book
LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS
By Nathan Leopold

Warr Brothers Productions acquires exclusive film rights for acclaimed best selling novel on the first crime of the century. LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS written by Nathan Leopold.

In Chicago, 1924, two precocious wealthy teenage scholars, Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, kidnap and murder a fourteen-year-old boy, Bobby Franks. The nation cried out for vengeance, while the boys took delight and offered no remorse for the murder. It came to be known to the world as the "First Thrill Kill".

The book titled LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS was the only book written by either of the two murderers. Nathan Leopold answers decades-long questions as to how and why they committed the crime. He also gives the reader a first glance at the steps that led up to their incarceration, as well as salacious details of life in prison and his rehabilitation.

Richard Loeb was murdered in prison.

Writer Aaron Warr is said to recognize the historical responsibility and significance of this iconic story. Warr says, "It is groundbreaking, and a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for any producer."
